

ETERNA

SINCE 1856

ETERNA, A PIONEER SINCE 1856

Over the past 163 years, the same powerful force has driven Eterna: a daring and pioneering spirit. With passionate and unwavering determination, Eterna continually tackles the challenges of fine watchmaking by developing, creating and optimizing its timepieces with remarkable consistency. Eterna has always incorporated the most innovative and reliable movements because of its famous in-house movement manufacturing. It is from this perspective that Eterna, a Granges-based company in the foothills of the Jura mountains, has enriched and revolutionized the art of traditional Swiss watchmaking.

THE PIONEERS

UNIQUE INNOVATION CREATES NEW STANDARDS

Throughout the course of its 160-year history, Eterna has developed pioneering solutions for centuries-old watchmaking challenges in its unending quest for absolute mechanical perfection. Rather than simply living up to the standards of the Swiss watch industry, Eterna has always strived to set the standards all others aspire to reach.

Eterna revolutionized automatic movements with the invention of the Eterna-Matic ball-bearing mounted rotor system in 1948. The five sphere rotor reduced friction and became the pinnacle of automatic movement design. At the forefront of quartz watch development in the 70s, Eterna challenged the paradigm of size and style by creating watches measuring no more than 0.98 mm in width. More recently, the Eterna Spherodrive movement and its ball-bearing mounted barrel rotor system established industry-leading benchmarks for mechanical movements. The newest of Eterna's innovations is the Calibre 39 movement whose ingenious modular design allows 88 movement permutations from the base caliber.

Innovation. Creation. Pioneering. These ideas do not materialize without true determination and dedication to pushing the boundaries and exploring the unknown. Success is no guarantee, but becoming a trailblazer requires bold concepts, research and risk. As Thor Heyerdahl set out on the famous KonTiki voyage in 1947, attempting to traverse the tumultuous Pacific Ocean from Peru to Polynesia on a small wooden raft with no modern technology, he and his crew confronted true danger and risk to demonstrate Mr. Heyerdahl's assertions about ancient sea travel. To this end, the pioneer Thor and his crew were equipped with specially-designed Eterna watches that could withstand the perilous ocean journey with precision. In 1957, Eterna released its famed KonTiki line to commemorate the journey, forever etching its name alongside famous explorers as pioneers.

THE CALIBRE 39

Calibre Maison Eterna

For many years, Eterna concentrated on growing its in-house movement manufacturing and expanding its portfolio of movements – a return to the breakthroughs that Eterna prides itself upon. The Calibre 39 is Eterna's most recent and possibly most innovative in-house development. Through a combination of finely-tuned precision and tireless ingenuity, the designers produced a true breakthrough in Swiss movements. The movement offers unparalleled modularity using the base caliber, allowing for an astounding 88 different movement variations. By continuing to develop its in-house movement manufacture, Eterna returns to the forefront of innovation and industry-leading technical design.
